I keep a file of professionals who I trust to work with you, and I am always happy to make referrals. These are a few professionals that may be helpful to you as you plan your wedding and start your life together. If you need further services, please don't hesitate to ask for a referral. I love making connections!

I am a fine art photographer specializing in destination weddings, natural light, and capturing life's most precious little moments and details. I combine an editorial styling approach with a love of candid photography to create images that are natural, elegant, and timeless. I have begun reincorporating film photography into my work, and have fallen absolutely head over heels with the entire process. From the tactile feeling of loading my camera with film, to the beautiful 'click' my camera makes as the shutter releases and exposes the film, to the dreamy way film renders light and color tones to a level that is easily comparable with a painting, it is truly a timeless art form that I look forward to being able to share with my clients.

Check your withholding whenever significant personal or financial changes occur in your life, including the following: marriage, new child, job change, income change, change in deductions or credits... Unfortunately, the procedures for arriving at the proper withholding amounts are among the more complex ones taxpayers confront. A wide array of factors play a role: exemptions, deductions, credits, marital status, your spouse's income, and others. The Form W-4 includes three worksheets that you may have to complete to determine the proper withholding. If you think your situation calls for a withholding adjustment (up or down), and you would like some guidance in getting through this maze, please give us a call.
